

GLENN WALTERS

Glenn Walters is an urban planner, landscape architect, and community design leader with more than forty years of experience guiding communities through growth, change, and redevelopment. His work spans comprehensive planning, downtown revitalization, master planning, economic development, parks and open space systems, corridor planning, and implementation strategies.

After more than twenty years as a Principal with Design Workshop, Glenn founded TownStudio to provide highly collaborative planning and design services to communities seeking thoughtful, implementable solutions. Throughout his career he has worked with nationally recognized multidisciplinary teams and has led projects across the United States and internationally.

His planning philosophy is rooted in the belief that the most enduring places emerge where landscape, culture, economy, infrastructure, and community aspirations are aligned. Every plan is tailored to the unique identity of the community rather than applying a single planning model.

Planning Philosophy

Planning is most successful when it builds on the qualities that already make a place special. My role is to help communities discover those strengths, engage residents in meaningful dialogue, translate ideas into compelling visual plans, and create implementation strategies that elected officials and citizens can realistically support. Great plans balance vision with pragmatism and inspire long-term stewardship.

Selected Leadership Strengths

- Transforms complex planning challenges into clear visual narratives.
- Builds consensus among elected officials, stakeholders, and residents.
- Integrates land use, transportation, housing, economic development, and environmental systems.
- Produces implementation-oriented plans that guide investment and policy.
- Experienced presenter and workshop facilitator.
